12th June 1914.

Dear Mr Narjundayya,

In order to obviate financial objections as to want of previous sanction, may I suggest that a formal order be issued authorising the treatment as on public duty of the period of stay of the Judges of the Chief Court and of other Judicial Officers at Mysore, between the termination of the Birthday Durbar and the commencement of the Judicial Conference.

In my own case, the said intermediate period was taken up

(over and above the disposal of current work) with informal discussions on the subjects that were about to engage the attention of the Judicial Conference, and with giving the finishing touches to my minute on Judicial Reform.

After all, the period in question (which comprises a Sunday) is only three days, and therefore much too short to allow of any substantial work being done in the interval between the hurried journeys to and fro. And as against it there would be the extra cost to Government in payment of double first-class fare for the return journey.

Under the circumstances it seems to me that it would be a graceful act on the part of Government to pass an order on their own motion, as suggested.

Yours sincerely
Mr Chamberlain
